

Copyright Policy

The On-Demand Book Service (ODBS) respects the intellectual property rights of the authors or other creators of the resources available on this website.

Only the resources that are free from copyright can be printed from this website. Copyright free items are public domain or open access. The print option will only be available when you are looking at these types of resources.

All of the other resources are subject to the Canadian Copyright Act as well as the copyright laws of other countries around the world. For more information about this Act, please consult the Canadian Intellectual Property Office website.

<http://www.cipo.ic.gc.ca/eic/site/cipointernet-internetopic.nsf/eng/home>

The Canadian Copyright Act can also be found on the Department of Justice Canada website using the following link.

<http://laws.justice.gc.ca/en/C-42/index.html>

In order to reproduce or distribute any of the other resources on the website, you must contact the rights holders directly. For more information about how to get permission from the copyright holder, visit the following websites.

University of Pennsylvania – The Online Books Page:

<http://onlinebooks.library.upenn.edu/okbooks.html>

- This webpage provides a few links to locate who has copyright of a certain resource in Canada, Australia, the United Kingdom and the United States. It also contains extensive information about the concept of public domain and what resources fall into this category according to different countries around the world.

Copyright Kids – Getting Permission:

<http://www.copyrightkids.org/permisframes.htm>

- This webpage contains sample permission letters, as well as contact information for music publishers, record companies, and film clip, television clip, books, articles, photos, and illustrations clearance agencies.

Stanford University Libraries – Copyright & Fair Use:

<http://fairuse.stanford.edu/Copyright and Fair Use Overview/index.html>

- This website has several links to information about copyright, fair use, public domain, as well as information about the permissions process.

For more information on copyright, please visit the links below.

[Insert titles of documents that I have written here, and links when it is real; for example Copyright FAQs, glossary (maybe separate or different from glossary for whole site), citation discourse...]

Ideas for hyperlinks embedded within the documents:

Blue links: websites

[OR]

Green links: hyperlink to organization?

[OR BOTH]

Red links: possible hyperlinks to glossary section of website

DRAFT